

Form for falling ill on holiday abroad

(English)

Introduction

Have you fallen ill abroad? Then you need to call in sick to your line manager or your job coach (if you are a contractor) within 24 hours. You must remain in contact with your manager during the period of sickness absence.

You are also required to obtain a sick certificate from an official institution or independent doctor in that country.

The doctor of that institution or independent doctor will make a diagnosis pertaining to your sickness. This must be written legibly in the English or French language.

This sick certificate should state:

- The nature and expected duration of the illness
- The date on which you became sick
- What treatment has been prescribed
- Whether you are fit to travel
- The doctor's address, telephone number, fax number, and/or email address.

Please, provide a copy of any prescription you have been given for medication. You can find the form on the website of Spaarne Werkt: www.spaarnewerkt.nl.

The doctor should email the completed form to spreekuuraanvraag@spaarnewerkt.nl for the attention of the company doctor as soon as possible.

Your line manager will contact you within two working days to discuss the Paswerk company doctor's assessment with you in terms of whether or not you are fit for work. The company doctor will also indicate whether or not you are expected to travel.

As soon as the attending physician, institution, or company doctor assesses you as being well enough for the return journey to the Netherlands, you are obliged to comply. Report to your line manager immediately on your return. Your line manager will ensure you are seen by the company doctor.

It is important that you comply with these regulations. Failing to comply with these regulations could have legal consequences in terms of employment law.

We wish you a speedy recovery and safe journey home!
